County braces for Erin

BY
MEEK

County and city officials gathered Wednesday afternoon to plan strategy for the possible landfall of Hurricane Erin in Hancock County.

As of late Wednesday night, the hurricane was expected to make landfall in Gulfport, which would keep Hancock County west of the storm's center. The worst possible scenario for the county, Hancock County Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin said, would be for the storm to pass south.

"We could expect tides of up to seven to eight feet in that case," Boudin said.

Officials met Wednesday as it became apparent the county may be in the storm's path. Until early Wednesday afternoon, it appeared the storm would go inland in the Florida panhandle.

Boudin announced four shelters should be open by 7 a.m. today. They are Bay Middle School, Hancock High School, Methodist Day Care Center (handicapped only), and Hotel Reed Nursing Center (elderly only).

Mike Ladner, president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, said all county offices would be closed today. Also, Waveland Mayor John Mason said city officials would be closed, and only essential personnel need to report to work.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre said city offices would also be closed.

"There are a lot of people in mobile homes and low-lying areas that feel unsafe," Boudin said. "They should go to the shelters."

Boudin called the expected minimum hurricane a "nuisance storm."

"But we have to be ready," he told county and city officials. "If it changes during the night, it could come here."

Stocking up

Hancock County residents spent the early part of the week stocking up on supplies in preparation for the possible arrival of Hurricane Erin. By Tuesday, shelves at Sav-A-Center were nearly empty (right), as customers stocked up on fresh water, batteries and non-perishable commodities (below). By Wednesday evening, some service stations were depleted of gas, others were reporting 90-minute waits. (Echo staff photos by Jimmie Brewer)

Chicken dinner

A benefit chicken dinner for the Valena C. Jones Sunday School Primary Department is scheduled for Aug. 5 from 11:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. at the home of Daisy Bell, 514 St. Francis St., Bay St. Louis. The menu is fried chicken, pasta, red beans and rice, greenbeans, bread and dessert. The cost is $3.75. For more information, call 467-5213.

Football registration

Registration for players and cheerleaders in the Youth Football League of Bay/Waveland is scheduled for Aug. 5 from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Sports Connection in Waveland. A birth certificate and recent photo are required.

Storm forces casino closures

BY RICHARD MEEK AND
MARY G. SEILEY

The uncertain path of Hurricane Erin forced the Jubilee Casino and Casino Magic to shut their doors at midnight on Thursday.

The Mississippi State Gaming Commission had earlier ordered all coastal casinos be closed by 6 a.m. Thursday. "We've been watching (Erin) since it formed as a depression," said Greg Bradley of the Magic.

Bradley said the Magic had completed an upgrade of its mooring system in June, and that the barge was "now capable of withstanding 155-mile-per-hour winds and a 20-foot tidal surge."

To prepare, Bradley said workers had been cleaning up outside to remove anything "that could become airborne."

"Inside, they've gone over their internal controls to prepare for a shutdown," he said. "We're as prepared as we possibly could be."

He said the neighboring harbor was available to moor small craft but there were only 43 slips available and those were already full. He said the harbor used to house 120 slips, but the floating in of the casino's barge reduced the number to 43.

He said boats will not be allowed to moor against the pier because it may cause possible damage to the "craft and the pier."

Jubilee officials were unavailable for comment.

However, it was the casino's second brush with a tropical system in less than a week.

A slow-moving tropical depression that later became Tropical Storm Dean caused Beach Boulevard to flood. Beach Boulevard, which is the only road to the casino, was closed Saturday afternoon and remained closed Sunday. However, many ignored the barricades and drove to the casino anyway.

Additionally, patrons were able to park elsewhere and shuttle in to the casino by bus.

Hwy 603 ruling expected soon

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Attorneys waged legal war Monday over who's at fault for the long-delayed construction of Highway 603.

A ruling is expected by the end of the week on whether the contractor should be granted summary judgement in a $3 million case against state highway officials. A ruling on another motion could open the door to scores of attorneys for a whole new batch of defendants in the matter.

At issue is SCI, Inc.'s contention that the state highway department is liable for multi-million dollar losses for the contractor incurred while at work on the four-laning of Highway 603, from Highway 90 to Stennis International Airport.

SCI contends that the state failed to see to it that a number of utility companies removed their lines and pipes from the project's pathway on time.

SCI attorney Thomas W. Prewitt said Monday that utility "conflicts" in the pathway forced SCI workers to "hopscotch around," working a few hundred yards here and there to dodge the utilities. "Those utility conflicts made our work vastly more expensive," said Prewitt.

He said the contractor

Kids fishing rodeo Saturday

The 11th Gulf Coast Sportsman's Club Kids Fishing Rodeo is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 5, from 6 a.m.-5 p.m.

The rodeo is open to boys and girls ages 13 and under, officials said.

Rodeo headquarters will be at the American Legion Memorial Pier, Beach Boulevard and Washington Street, in Bay St. Louis.

Registration is free, and forms will be available at the rodeo headquarters until 2 p.m. on rodeo day, or at Sam Perniciaro's Garage in Bay St. Louis.

All fish must be caught by the participants on the day of the rodeo in any waters in the area from piers, shore line, boats or wading.

Sportsman's Club members will handle the scales, and the weighmaster's decisions are final.

Trophies will be awarded. Scales will close at 5 p.m.

Home on display

The 1955 Decorator Show House at 406 North Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis will be on display from Aug. 5-26. Each room of the historic residence (above) has undergone renovations to restore its structural integrity. Each room has also been designed by a different decorator. All furnishings, art and accessories may be purchased. For more information, see story on page 11A. (Echo staff photo by Richard Meek)

When to seek counseling for kids

Behavior that drives parents and teachers up the wall may be perfectly normal for a child's age, but some actions may signal the need for professional counseling.

Dr. Dudley E. Sykes, professor emeritus of counseling and educational psychology at The University of Mississippi, offers these tips to help determine when to be concerned and when to just grin and bear it.

• Sign one. Destructive or bad behavior between the ages of 2 and 3½ is perfectly normal. But if a child reaches the age of 4 and continues to be very destructive, it can be a sign of trouble requiring early identification and treatment by a qualified school counselor or psychologist.

• Sign two. Baseless aggression is also a warning sign. "If a child hits another just for the heck of it, that is a symptom of a problem," Sykes said. When aggression is a response to something, it's not the same cause for concern as when a child simply behaves aggressively for no apparent reason.

• Sign three. Research reveals a link between children with behavior problems and those with short attention spans.

• Sign four. Parents and teachers should be concerned about an extremely egocentric child who never wants to share or allow other children to be first in any activity. If those around a child sense his isolation and indifference, it is usually a sign that a problem exists.

• Sign five. If the above behaviors occur consistently and there seems to be a pattern, formal psychological testing and observation are needed. School counselor or psychologists should intervene at this point.

• Sign six. Behavior problems cannot be worked out in isolation. Counselors or psychologists must have the active involvement of parents for treatment to be effective.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

If Mississippi had an open primary . . .

This is the little-known story of how Mississippi came within an eyelash in 1971 of getting the "open primary" election system that neighboring Louisiana has been using now for the past 20 years.

If Mississippi had an open primary, for instance, next week state voters would have both Republican Kirk Fordice and Democrat Dick Molpus and other gubernatorial candidates from both parties on the same ballot.

Then, if no one got a majority, the two top candidates would run it off later in the year, and this year's elections would be over. Of course, all other state officials, plus legislators and county officials would be chosen in the same way.

Would Mississippi be better off if we had the open primary system all these years? Like almost everything else, it can be argued both ways. Clearly, the cost and time of campaigning and elections would have been considerably less expensive and time consuming.

It would have likely brought a different result in who has held the governor's office over the past two decades. Fordice, for example, probably wouldn't be governor today. It's likely he wouldn't even have made the cut in 1991 considering that both Democrats Ray Mabus and Wayne Dowdy were much better known and got far more votes than Fordice in the 1991 primaries. Now, as the incumbent governor, Fordice would be in a much better situation if he had an open primary this year.

Still, there's no guarantee as Louisianians have found out, for an incumbent governor to automatically win re-election in an open primary. Buddy Roemer was bounced out of office four years ago by Edwin Edwards, and David Treen was booted out in the 1980s.

But back to the story of how Mississippi didn't get an open primary system back in 1971 after it had been passed by the 1970 Legislature, signed by the governor, and apparently cleared by then-U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell.

"Apparently" is the operative word here. A letter written by Mitchell's deputy, Jerris Leonard, had been sent to Mississippi's Attorney General A. F. Summer early in 1971 stating no objection to the new state election law under the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

That was thought to be all that was necessary for the law to become effective. But civil rights lawyer Frank Parker (his main client, ironically, was Charles Evers) asked a three-judge federal court for an injunction against the law being used in the 1971 elections.

The federal court panel was headed by U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Charles Clark. To the surprise of most observers, the court gave Parker the temporary injunction, leaving the law as it was said at the time, in "animated suspension" because the language in the Justice Department letter was somewhat confusing, although it said no objection was being raised.

Clark and his fellow judges assumed that Summer's office would thereupon ask the Justice Department for a clarification, and then it would get the court's ok for the 1971 elections.

Lord only knows what kind of political shenanigans took place behind the scenes in the interim, but the letter was not sent back, leaving the law in "animated suspension" for the rest of the year.

When it was finally resubmitted over two years later, there had been big changes in the Justice Department because of Watergate, and significantly the Mississippi Republican Party, which had won two Congressional seats in 1972, was no longer in favor of the open primary idea as it was before. So in 1974 the state Republicans asked Justice to reject the 1971 bill on its resubmission and it did.

The great irony is that Louisiana passed an open primary in 1972 and it was later that year cleared by Justice beginning with the 1975 elections.

Judge Clark, now retired from the bench and practicing law in Jackson, regrets unto this day that his action back in 1971 stopped Mississippi from getting the open primary system. "It's a decision I wish had turned out differently," he says.

But he recalls that he was troubled at the time by the ambivalence in Mitchell's letter and felt it could lead to further litigation and turmoil in state elections that year if not clarified. Ruefully, he says, "I was not trying to decide the case on what I wanted for the state."

Admittedly, Clark says he would still like to see the open primary. "I'm interested in cost saving and cutting down on campaigns," he said. "It makes sense to me."

Mississippi's Legislature had first passed an open primary law in 1964 after the Republicans made their first significant gubernatorial bid the year before against Democrat Paul B. Johnson Jr. Johnson, who complained strenuously that he was forced through "three primaries" in order to be elected, turned around and surprisingly vetoed the open primary bill.

On three occasions including the 1971 fiasco, the Justice Department has rejected Mississippi's attempt to install the open primary system, using as grounds that it would eliminate black independent candidates from winning with a plurality vote.

Mississippi Republicans over the years have blown both hot and cold on the idea of all candidates running in a single primary, while state Democrats, bowing to black Democrats, have turned against it in the Legislature.

Some strange things can happen under the open primary, such as in 1991 when extremist David Duke, calling himself a Republican, got into the Louisiana final election with Edwards. Even most Louisiana Republicans wound up voting against Duke.

CONSUMER UPDATE

Q. I keep making payments on my credit card bills but don't seem to be making much progress. I have paid on one credit card for almost two years but I owe almost as much as when I started paying. When I added the Christmas bills that came in January and February, I felt like I was getting deeper in debt. Do you have any suggestions?

A. Minimum payments on credit cards have dropped to such a low level that many cards take 20 to 30 years to repay if only minimum payments are made. That's if you don't make any new charges.

There is a technique that can get you out of debt. Debt counselors call it "making power payments." Extra principal payments lower the outstanding balance quicker than with the creditor's minimum payment schedule.

Power payments come from small savings you squeeze from your monthly budget or in a lump sum from tax refunds, gifts, overtime or bonuses. They drastically reduce the amount of interest paid and the amount of time it takes to repay the debt.

For instance, a credit card charging a rate of 18% with a $500 balance and $10 minimum payment will take 75 months to repay and cost $250 in interest charges. Increase that payment to $20 and payment time is reduced by 31 months and interest paid drops by $100.

A computer program called "Powerpay" customizes power payments to fit your budget and debt situation. Powerpay has an impact when the consumer sees total finance charges over the life of the loan and the time takes to payoff debt. But it goes beyond shock value to show the real value of small extra payments.

Powerpay allows a one-time lump sum payment or a monthly addition to regular payments. To keep you on schedule, it prints a calendar with dates and amounts of every payment until all debts are paid. An amortization schedule can be printed if you wish to see breakdowns of interest and principal portions.

The program compares alternate payment sequences such as high interest rates first, low balances first, shortest terms first, or you preferred repayment schedule. It compares dollar savings and repayment times for each sequence.

Considering consolidation?

Powerpay evaluates the costs and benefits of consolidation vs. the existing debt structure.

For Powerpay to work for you, the consumer must commit to:

- * Stop charging until current debts are paid.
- * Make power payments. Find a little extra in your budget to add to existing minimum payments.
- * Keep total monthly payments level. When one debt is paid, add that payment to another bill.

The Mississippi Cooperative

Extension Service offers the Powerpay as a way for consumers to get out of debt faster. To try it, make a complete list of all creditors, their minimum monthly payments, current balances, and annual percentage rates of interest. Indicate an additional monthly amount that can be committed to power payments. If you have a lump sum available for debt reduction, indicate how much and when this can be paid. Call your county extension to set an appointment request of print-out for your situation.

Jobless rate soars

Seasonal influences sent the jobless rate soaring by one and half percentage points between May and June, matching the month-to-month change recorded in 1994. Students pouring into a crowded job market joined other new entrants in search of work.

This is an annual occurrence and was not unexpected. Increases in manufacturing, agriculture and retail trade jobs were more than enough to offset sharp losses in school-related employment.

Many students were used to fill these demands, but numerous others were unsuccessful in their job search. These joined the ranks of the unemployed, sending that total much higher, also. The end result was a much larger labor force and a new unemployment rate of 7.4 percent.

This was far and away the highest rate so far this year, but was well below the eight percent figure tallied in June of last year.

Almost all areas of the state saw sharp increases in joblessness with localized layoffs and closures impacting certain areas more than others. The rise in joblessness could have been worse if farm-related jobs had not rebounded after a slow start in April and May.

Despite the increase in unemployment, the June rate was the lowest rate for that month in the last decade and a half.

When adjusted for seasonality, the June jobless rate was unchanged from May, remaining at an even six percent. This indicates some leveling off in economic growth as the labor force stabilizes further.

Only seven counties reported rates of less than five percent while some 27 suffered double digit unemployment rates.

Rankin, Lamar and Lafayette counties recorded the lowest rates in the state, with Jefferson and Tunica registering the highest percentages. It is anticipated that rates will remain fairly high in July, before falling in August and September as students return to school and agricultural harvest activity begins.

With the year half gone, it appears that 1995 will closely parallel 1994 in regard to labor force conditions. Instability in interest rates, high fuel costs and a shaky dollar could cause some problems in the latter half of the year, but that remains to be seen.

The unemployment rate for Hancock County was 7.1 percent, a rise from 6.4 percent in May. Last June, the figure was eight percent.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Congress' oversight role

One of the key and least exercised responsibilities of the Congress is oversight. By oversight I mean going back to review laws we have put into place to see if they are working and achieving the results we intended when we wrote them.

If they are not, we need to follow up with reforms to correct the problem or consider even repealing them. Oversight also extends to reviewing the actions and effectiveness of the various federal agencies and personnel, since they came into being as the result of an act of Congress.

Congress has been remiss in not carrying out its responsibility for oversight, but it is on target in doing so now with the hearings by the Special Committee to Investigate the Whitewater Development Corporation and with hearings by two House subcommittees investigating the assaults by federal law enforcement agents on the Branch Davidian compound near Waco, Texas.

The Whitewater hearings initially are focusing on the handling of the Whitewater-related files and records removed by senior White House officials from the office of Deputy White House Counsel Vincent W. Foster Jr., possibly within hours of his death.

At the time of his death, Foster was handling various personal legal matters for President and Mrs. Clinton, including matters related to Whitewater Development Corporation, the Arkansas real estate development firm in which the Clintons held a one-half interest between 1978 and 1992. That interest is now under examination by a court-appointed independent counsel.

Despite various investigations since Foster's death, which occurred under tragic circumstances on July 20, 1993, three main issues remain unresolved:

First, what Whitewater documents were in Foster's office, who was responsible for removing the documents, and where are the documents now?

Second, was it appropriate — and legal — for Foster to be working on Whitewater matters for the President and Mrs. Clinton in his White House office while serving as Deputy White House Counsel? Finally, why did law enforcement officers fail to seal Foster's office?

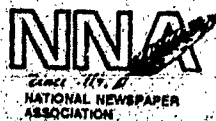

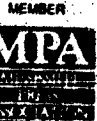

Congress needs to look at these situations, try to find out what really happened, and take the necessary actions to ensure that these situations do not happen again.

NASA online system to speed MidRange procurements

A new online system available over the Internet is speeding up the way NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center does its MidRange procurements. This system is being implemented in keeping with NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin's initiatives to simplify the agency's procurement process and is designed to help business and industry access, view and download relevant information quickly and easily from their offices, thus reducing procurement lead time.

MidRange procurements are those which fall into the $50,000 to $500,000 range. The majority of all NASA contract actions fall into this category. Streamlined solicitations and contracts, MidRange buying teams, best value selection, and the use of the online system to announce opportunities and disseminate solicitations are all part of the MidRange procurement process.

"As of Oct. 1, MidRange procurements will no longer be announced in the Commerce Business Daily (CBD) and will only be available through the Internet," said Jane Johnson, NASA procurement specialist at Stennis Space Center.

"Because of this, our office is offering assistance to MidRange procurement customers in accessing this information."

The primary advantage of the online system is the waiver of the current 45-day requirement between the publication and the synopsis in the CBD and the closing date for proposals. MidRange procedures establish a 15-day minimum waiting period but encourages a longer period for more complex requirements.

The second advantage is immediate access to solicitations. Using an electronic bulletin board, an offeror can download a solicitation within minutes and be working on a proposal.

The savings in time could be a few days to a week. With the new online process, companies can get electronic copies of solicitations, retrieve solicitations immediately upon release and avoid several days of document reproduction and mail time.

NASA procurement and information management systems personnel from Stennis Space Center recently provided demonstrations on the simplified process at the Gulf Coast Business and Marketing Fair.

Demonstrations were given Aug. 1 and 2 at the eighth annual Jackson County Industrial Trade Show in Pascagoula and will be given Aug. 9 at the Third Congressional District Business Conference and Procurement Opportunities Fair in Meridian.

MidRange procurement information for NASA's John C. Stennis can be found on the World Wide Web on <http://www.ssc.nasa.gov/procur>.

For further information on NASA's simplified MidRange procurement system or the upcoming trade fair demonstrations, contact Johnson at (601) 688-3681 or Gay Irby at (601) 688-1776.

Preparing for dance

Members of the Krewe of Nereids met recently to plan the annual Nereids Fish Fry and Dance. Proceeds from the fund raiser enable the krewe to sponsor its Mardi Gras parade each year in the Bay-Waveland area. The fish fry and dance will be Aug. 19 at the Hancock County Civic Center on Longfellow Road. Fried fish dinners for $6 will be served from 4-8 p.m. Live entertainment begins at 8 p.m. with members of the krewe performing, followed by the celebrated rhythm and blues band, Steppin' Out, led by Laurin Munsch. Tickets for the dance are $12.50 at the door or in advance from a Nereids member. The public is invited. For information, call Patsy Dubuison at 467-0244.

J.T. Ladner
CHANCERY CLERK
HANCOCK COUNTY

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY Tuesday, August 8th

Hello, I am J.T. Ladner, a native of Hancock County and lifelong property owner. My roots are as old as the farm house standing on our old family farm. While I have worked outside of Hancock County in my professional life, I have remained it's native son. I have prepared all my life for the position of Chancery Clerk.

I have involved myself in public service for many years. I have been the chairman of United Way (1,000 people), a member of the Advisory Council for the American Red Cross, a member of the local Emergency Planning Committee, and the two time recipient of the American Legion Award.

As a business owner since 1982, my wife Lenette and I have operated Country Acres Summer Camp in the Standard Community. We provide a structured environment with life enhancement activities and just plain fun for the youth of our community.

I have prepared for the position of Chancery Clerk all of my life.

I have been responsible for the management of the St. Bernard Parish School System's operational effectiveness since 1984. In the capacity of supervising operations of seventeen (17) schools, I have managed the bids and purchasing, insurance needs, physical structure maintenance, departmental personnel management, emergency planning, records archival and management.

The level of management required of me in my professional life is extremely close to the level of management required by the Chancery Clerk position. I have had opportunity to use the position in the school system to model some of the changes I would bring to the Chancery Clerk office.

The Chancery Clerk's office must keep abreast of the opportunities which technology offers and computerize the land records, better archive the county records, update inventory control, and most importantly, offer a financial management system which projects effective cash and resource management-thus avoiding "off budget" crisis spending.

If elected, the office doors will be open to the public for inspections and accountability.

I have been educated locally, graduating from Hancock North Central High School, Pearl River Junior College with an Associate of Arts Degree, the University of Southern Mississippi with a Bachelor of Science, completed a Masters Degree from Nichols State University and studied at Loyola University, Southeastern Louisiana University and Northeast Louisiana University for 30 hours over my masters degree.

As your Chancery Clerk, I will make sure that all functions of the office are being performed accurately.

Ruling

repeatedly asked the Mississippi Department of Transportation officials to let SCI out of the contract, but the contractor was told repeatedly to continue to work. And, he said, MDOT had an audit done to determine whether SCI had been damaged by the utility problem - and found a $3 million loss to the company.

Work on the project stopped at one point during the dispute, but MDOT officials agreed to pay SCI some $600,000 in advance to complete the project, the court was told.

State attorneys said an agreement signed in March outlined four reasons MDOT decided to make that payment and proceed with the project. It agreed that there were some utility restrictions that the contractor faced, and that SCI claimed they didn't have enough money to finish the project. The agreement also said officials consider it "imperative" that work on 603 be completed, because it's an official "gaming impact area" under the state's road project rules.

Most importantly, state officials said, they wanted the project to go forward without having to call on USF&G's surety bond that backed it up. That, they said, would no doubt have prompted a massive lawsuit that would have further delayed the project.

The arrangement to have SCI proceed, even as the lawsuit pends, was "no admission of liability" on the state's part, attorneys told Circuit Court Judge John Whitfield.

State officials say they offered to let SCI back off from the contract before work ever began, in light of problems in having the utilities removed quickly. SCI denies that offer was made.

Attorneys for the state urged Whitfield not to grant summary judgment for SCI, saying there are several disputes to be resolved in court. Only cases without factual disputes can be handled through summary judgment, the state contended.

State officials also urged Whitfield to pull seven utility owners into the case as defendants. While the state doesn't accept blame for the construction delays, it contends that any such damages should be paid by the utility companies.

"The (highway) commission cannot go out and physically remove the utilities," attorney Whitney Byars argued for the state, saying highway officials did everything they could to have the utilities removed.

"Bring in the utilities and try it all at one time," she asked Whitfield. She posed the possibility that, otherwise, the state would file suit against the utilities independently.

Prewitt said adding the utilities to the lawsuit would be "distasteful," causing delays in the final resolution of the case.

"We should start getting rain about 8-9 a.m.," he said. "We want to have the shelters open by then."

Boudin asked law enforcement officials present to provide police protection at the various shelters. Three of the shelters fall under the jurisdiction of the Bay Police Department, and the other, Hancock High School, the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Boudin urged people in low-lying areas to evacuate. He said sandbags would not be available, as they would be used in emergencies.

"We don't want to sandbag, we want to evacuate," Boudin said. "We want people of the low-lying areas. We want everybody out, we don't want to have to go get anybody."

He said Diamondhead residents "should have nothing to worry about. Those residents can just stay in their homes and ride it out."

He urged residents who are either hooked up to any life-support systems, or who have relatives or friends that are, to make other arrangements.

Supervisor Robert Petersen also urged residents living in mobile homes to seek safer shelter.

Port and Harbor Commission Director Hal Walters said Stennis International Airport personnel were "busy battering down the hatches."

He encouraged anybody who owns a small plane at Stennis not stored in a hanger to "seek shelter elsewhere. There is not enough hanger space to store all of the planes."

He said Port Bienville was available to moor fishing and shrimping vessels, and by Wednesday afternoon, many fishermen already had. Additionally, the Jubilee Casino's floating restaurant, the Jubilation, was moored at Port Bienville.

"We can also float the Jubilee out there," he said.

Forecasters were predicting Wednesday night Erin's landfall should occur sometime late morning or early afternoon today.

August is Catfish Month

State catfish makes international waves

By Beth Wadrop Keiper

MSU Ag Communications August, National Catfish Month, presents a prime opportunity to enjoy one of Mississippi's specialties — fresh farm-raised catfish. The flavor and versatility of Mississippi's catfish are making waves that are reaching international shores.

A recent expedition to Hamburg, Germany, gave Mississippi catfish producers and processors a chance to promote farm-raised catfish internationally.

"We had an unbelievable trip to Germany," said Bill Allen, president of the Catfish Institute in Belzoni. "More than 200 people came to our reception — and stayed and stayed — to sample different recipes made with catfish and to learn more about the industry."

The group included German caterers, restaurant owners, importers, journalists and seafood distributors.

"They definitely have great interest in importing farm-raised catfish," Allen said. "Catfish sales in 1994 to Germany doubled '93 sales, and so far this year's sales are even higher."

Allen added that while Germany is leading the industry's export market, total export sales of catfish make up a small portion of the total sales volume.

The meeting in Hamburg was the culmination of the Catfish Institute's first full year of promotion in Germany.

The Institute is a non-profit corporation funded by $5 per ton contributions from catfish feed mills in Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama and Arkansas.

"Last year, we hosted five trade missions, bringing German seafood buyers and journalists to Mississippi for week-long tours of the industry," Allen said. "This helped raise interest in our product before our meeting this year."

The USDA's foreign market development program is aiding the Institute's export activities. Mississippi's catfish industry has come a long way since the first commercial farms were built in the Delta in the late 1960s.

Dr. Bob Martin, extension agricultural economist at Mississippi State University, said catfish is one of the top five agricultural commodities in the state in terms of economic impact.

"The estimated value of farm production for catfish in 1994 was about $280 million," Martin said. "Since many of the feed mills, processing plants and distributors are in Mississippi, we are able to keep more of the money associated with catfish in the state."

Mississippi has about 102,000 acres of catfish farms, approximately 60 percent of the total catfish acres in the United States.

"The industry is beginning to grow outside of the Delta, with new farms popping up in east Mississippi," Martin said.

Noxubee County leads in catfish acreage in the eastern part of the state, with about 3,500 acres in production, and another 1,000 acres planned.

Demand for farm-raised catfish, which has been good over the past few years, will get an extra boost during this summer's harvest season as the Catfish Institute kicks off a $2 million national advertising campaign.

"The advertisement will appear in consumer magazines and on cable television stations," Allen said. "They are expected to reach consumers all across the United States, with 285 million total advertisement impressions."

Magazines included in the campaign are Better Homes and Gardens, People, Bon Appetit, Gourmet and Simply Seafood, while television stations include CNN and USA Network.

Sheriff presents award

Police Chief John J. Doyle of Harahan, La. was awarded a special citation Tuesday by Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson.

The award, presented in the Sheriff's Office recognized Doyle's efforts in training and developing SWAT Team personnel for the Sheriff's Department. Also participating in making the award were the police chiefs of Waveland and Bay St. Louis.

Doyle's department provided the same training for those agencies as well as for the Biloxi Police Department.

In a unique, cooperative arrangement, Doyle's officers are commissioned by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department to serve as emergency back-up personnel.

Doyle's department has also worked with NASA security personnel at the Stennis Space Center to develop a hostage-response system.

Square dance in D'head

The Diamondhead Squares are forming a new class to learn square dancing. The first session will be Tuesday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m.

According to club secretary Lanny Yeske, this may be one of the best things that ever happens to you. No prior dance experience is necessary. Couples or singles are equally welcome. For information, call 255-4010 or 255-5777.

The club dances every Tuesday from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the St. William's Recreational Hall located off Kiln-DeLisle Road, three miles north of I-10 Exit 20. Once lessons begin, the dance will be from 8:30-10 p.m.

Gulf Coast region is running out of blood

Blood inventory at the Red Cross is at an extremely critical level — less than a two-day supply — despite a regionwide appeal for blood donations throughout the Gulf Coast.

With the approaching threat of Hurricane Erin, area residents are urged to call their local Red Cross Chapter to make an appointment to give blood.

Residents of the Red Cross' Gulf Coast Blood Services Region (Mississippi, Alabama, Florida and Georgia) can call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE for blood drive schedules in their area.

To give blood, you must be at least 17 years old, must weigh at least 110 pounds, and have not given blood in the last 56 days.

1. How can I vote Republican if I am a registered Democrat? No one is registered as a Republican or a Democrat. You are registered as a voter (elector) and may vote in either party's primary.

2. What if I want to vote for one candidate who is a Republican and another who is a Democrat in the primaries? During the primary elections, you must choose to vote in either the Republican primary or the Democratic primary.

3. How do I vote in the primary? Republicans and Democrats each vote in the same place. Each precinct (box) has a duplicate set of poll books, one for voters in the Republican primary and one for voters in the Democratic primary. Signs to direct you should be visible as you enter.

4. What about runoffs? If you vote in the Republican primary, you must vote in that runoff. If you vote in the Democratic primary, you must vote in that runoff. You may vote in either runoff if you did not vote in the primary election.

5. What about Independents? You may vote for independents only in the general elections.

6. Who conducts elections? The Republican party holds the Republican primary, the Democratic party holds the Democratic primary and the elected Commissioners hold the general election. All are conducted under the laws of the State of Mississippi.

7. What about voter registration? You must register with the Circuit Clerk's office by July 8, 1995 to vote in the primary election and by October 7, 1995 to vote in the general election. "Motor Voter" registration only qualifies you to vote in Federal elections.

ELECTION DATES: Primaries- Aug. 8, Runoffs- Aug. 29, General- Nov. 7.

Sponsored and paid for by The Hancock County Republican Executive Committee and The Hancock County Republican Women.

CHANCERY CLERK HANCOCK COUNTY

As we prepare to move into the 21st century, we need elected officials that can direct the movement of the county in a positive manner - officials that are in touch and concerned about the county and the quality of life that it offers to the citizens. My experience in state and federal government requirements and my genuine love of Hancock County have prepared me to become your Chancery Clerk.

Since graduating from USM in 1980, I have been employed by the state of Mississippi and for contractors of the federal government. My experience is varied, much like the office of the Chancery Clerk. I ask you to consider my qualifications and vote for me as your Chancery Clerk. My experience that will immediately benefit this office is in the following areas.

- * Budgeting
- * Contracts Administration
- * Planning
- * Scheduling
- * Personnel Management

- * Auditing
- * Purchasing
- * Inventory Control

A Message From ...

Sheriff

RONALD A. "Ronnie" PETERSON

A History of Leadership

SCHOOL LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson, at Bay St. Louis High School, was elected by his classmates, president of his class all four years. He was also captain of the football, basketball and baseball teams in his senior year, and upon graduation, received the Most Outstanding Athlete Award. At Pearl River Junior College, Sheriff Peterson was chosen a monitor in charge of his dormitory.

MILITARY LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson served four years in the United States Marine Corps and is a Vietnam veteran. In December 1965, Sheriff Peterson, then a squad leader serving in Vietnam, guided a squad of Marines deep into the jungles of Vietnam on a reconnaissance patrol to gather information about enemy activity. Under extremely hazardous conditions and enemy fire, Sheriff Peterson accomplished his mission and was meritoriously promoted to the rank of Sergeant. He received numerous military medals and upon completion of his military service, he received an honorable discharge and was highly recommended for re-enlistment.

LAW ENFORCEMENT LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson has been serving as your Sheriff for the last 16 years. Prior to that, he was a Narcotics Investigator, Chief Investigator, and Chief Deputy. He has 24 continuous years service at the Hancock County Sheriff's Department. During Sheriff Peterson's administration, more criminal indictments have been returned than in the history of Hancock County. Of the Grand Jury indictments returned, Sheriff Peterson's office has an unbelievable 95% conviction rate. Sheriff Peterson has an extensive background in Narcotic Investigation and will continue to focus his leadership toward the drug problem in Hancock County. He has participated in over 1400 drug related operations that resulted in hundreds of arrests and convictions. During these undercover operations, large seizures of money, cars and assets were taken from the drug dealers. The Sheriff's Department can now purchase two police vehicles a year from money (confiscated) from drug leaders on the interest alone, while the principal of $250,000 stays intact in a local bank. This results in a savings to the taxpayer. The Hancock County Metro Drug Task Force, in existence for 6 years, is now continuing the task of fighting drugs in the County.

CONSERVATIVE FISCAL POLICY - Responsible to the Taxpayer -

Sheriff Peterson was instrumental in getting the new Hancock County Justice Facility with the help of the voting public. The new Facility is now operating efficiently, and very businesslike. By housing Federal inmates, an income of over $500,000 a year is paid to Hancock County that makes the jail self supporting. A County inmate work program has also been implemented. Prisoners are now working at a County Farm to raise vegetables to cut costs on the food bill at the new facility. This also results in a savings to the taxpayer. Sheriff Peterson is instrumental in leading murder investigations that occur in Hancock County. Since he was elected Sheriff, Hancock County has an excellent record for solving these violent type crimes. By solving these crimes, the murder rate has dropped tremendously in Hancock County.

CONTINUING EDUCATION - Keeping Up With The Times -

Sheriff Peterson is a leader in all types of modern law enforcement techniques. He is a graduate of the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy basic police class. He graduated from the Law Enforcement Academy's investigation class. He is a graduate of the University of Mississippi narcotic class and attended numerous law enforcement seminars throughout the state. He is a member of the Mississippi Sheriff's Association and National Sheriff's Association. Sheriff Peterson is an experienced Sheriff you can talk to. He will continue to maintain an "open door" policy at the Sheriff's Department. His slogan has always been "don't ever reach so high that you would forget those who helped you get there."

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

"My name is Zoltan and I am a world famous warlock. I have the ability to strike fear and terror into the souls of those who have treated you badly. With my Spell of Revenge ritual you will be able to even the score with your foes, without being personally involved!"

This advertisement runs in a psychic newspaper which displays everything from the talisman of the pharaohs, the magic diamond and various spells to apparitions of the Virgin Mary. Hey, the pharaohs did not fare too well, did they?

Evidence is abundant everywhere that all people have a deep fascination with the invisible, intangible, inaudible and, for most, rarely experienced things of the spirit. But, strangely, the bogus attracts them most of all.

Psychics on TV, readers scattered throughout the commercial and even residential areas and psychic shops are a magnet for a bewildered and bewildering variety of people covering the gamut from atheists to so-called Christians.

The tragedy of this behavior is that it centers interest, time, energy, money, all sorts of resources and even life itself around what is false, double-meaning and, sooner or later, poisonous, even lethal, to the life of the spirit.

See the unmistakable, infinite difference between total thrust of the above-quoted Zoltan and the genuine Spirit of God, as presented to us by one Jesus Christ:

"I will send (the Advocate) to you . . . When he comes, the Spirit of truth, he will guide you to all truth . . . You will weep and mourn while the world rejoices . . . but your grief will become joy . . . and no one will take your joy away from you" (Jn. 16: 7-22).

Zoltan's mind is consumed by revenge and by the seal to export his vengefulness to other people — at a price, of course.

His alleged vehicle of delivery for revenge is the power of the spirit. Anything but the Holy Spirit.

Diametrically opposed to that flagrant abuse of the spirit is the Holy Spirit of God, the Fire of Love breathed forth by Jesus and his heavenly Father in their eternal rapture of love. All Jesus promises through the Spirit is peace, love:

"Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. Not as the world gives do I give it to you. Do not let your hearts be troubled or afraid" (Jn. 14: 27).

Instead of the vengeance, division and mayhem of the charlatans of the Spirit, Jesus and his Father have sent their Holy Spirit to bring reconciliation, unity, peace — and the fire of love! So there came to be the explosion of Pentecost.

In pursuit of the true life and works of the spirit, Mary, the mother of Jesus, the apostles and many disciples had gathered in nine days of prayer, making history's first novena: "Suddenly there came from the sky a noise like a strong, driving wind, and it filled the entire house in which they were. Then there appeared to them tongues as of fire, which parted and came to rest on each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in different tongues" (Acts 2: 2-4).

All psychic fakers should note well that this is the only event in the history of the world from which all genuine supernatural phenomena have their origin and stamp of approval.

Instill a love of school, learning in your child

Instilling a love for learning in a child is a task that can't be left to teachers and school administrators alone. The desire for knowledge must be nurtured and supported outside the classroom, and that means in the home.

That's the message from University of Mississippi elementary education professor Jean Shaw, who offers these tips to parents to help children acquire and maintain a positive attitude about school and its importance:

- Provide a study area in the home. While it doesn't have to be a fancy, elaborate setting, the area should be clearly designated as a place to read and study. Encyclopedias, dictionaries and other books should not only be available but also utilized regularly.
- Make studying and reading a priority in the child's daily schedule. Help him or her learn to prioritize and budget time for homework to be done, and reading, writing and drawing for pleasure. This might mean regulating the amount of time spent watching TV.

- Spend quality time with children. Read together and hold family discussions about certain interesting subject; solve practical, everyday math problems together; build parents and appreciation of science concepts that occur in every day.

- Reinforce a positive attitude about school and learning. Don't tell children horror stories about math or any subject. Parents should overcome their own fears and steer the child in a positive attitude toward fundamental and necessary skills, whether it be math, science or any other subject.

Tips to make dorm life easier

As thousands of students prepare to leave home for college for the first time, parents can help ensure all the necessities for dorm life are packed and ready.

NECESSITIES

- Lamps. Overhead lights need to be supplemented with lamps for late-night studying.
- Lines, pillows and towels. A student will also need shower shoes, a container to carry toiletries, a laundry basket or bag, and a good supply of detergent.
- Telephone. This may vary from college to college. Ole Miss requires the touch-tone version.
- Small first-aid kit. Accidents to happen.
- An alarm clock. No dorm room is equipped with a "mom" who gently shakes, cajoles or drags a student out of bed.
- Clothes for current season only. With limited closet space, students will find that it's better not bring their entire wardrobes.

DESIRABLES

- TV, VCR, stereo, small microwave and refrigerator. Coordinate these with roommates because most dorm rooms won't accommodate two of each. Some students are opting for a new compact appliance called "micro-fridge."
- Carpet. A 9- by 12-foot area rug makes dorm rooms

I have tried to contact everyone during this campaign to thank you for the opportunity to serve as your supervisor for the last eight years. Thanks to your confidence in me - together we have made Hancock County one of the fastest growing counties in Mississippi. We have managed to improve services and tighten the budget while lowering taxes. We continue to expand and upgrade the infrastructure and economic development of Hancock County. All this has been accomplished without adding to our burden of debt and in fact we are using less than one-third of our borrowing potential. Under firm leadership we will continue to grow.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Go away Erin and get lost. Don't even think about coming into our area.

This has been one of the best years for trout in many a moon. We certainly don't need all this foolishness about a storm coming to mess up the fishin'.

Let's talk about pleasant things, like who caught the fish last week.

One fishin' report the Turtle received was from Craig Sellier of Lakeshore. Craig reported his dad, Kent Sellier, along with sons Craig, Bruce and Keith went out on a boat called the Judgement.

Knowing the people who went fishin', the Turtle has to say that the name of the boat this group went so sea on is a very appropriate name. They related that they had two additional friends on the trip by the names of Willie Brown and Vert Adams from that foreign country to the west of us, Louisiana.

There was at least one professional on the boat. His name was Capt. Sonny.

The trip left the Biloxi Small Craft Harbor at dawn with the spectacle of a beautiful clear day and calm seas for their trip to the Chandelier Islands.

They fished the north light area in the Chandelier Islands and claimed the fishing was outstandingly great, and nothing short of spectacular. Of course, sometimes there is a difference between great fishing and great catching. Luck must have been with the Sellier crew as they even had a few pictures to prove they did some catchin'.

They claimed they caught six reds that ranged in size from 14 to 25 pounds, 29 Spanish-speaking mackerel, eight blue-fish (the fish weren't cold, they were just naturally blue), and a bunch of other goodies, including one underside lemon fish that they let go.

They related to the Turtle that all of the fish were caught on spoons between 8:30 and 11:30 a.m. After that time it seemed like the ole boy upstairs just turned off the fishin' switch because the fish refused to bite any more.

Got another report of a group that fished out in the Grand Pass/Creole gap area of the Louisiana Marsh and caught some "monster sting rays." Steve Klein of Lakeshore caught one sting ray that weighed around 125 pounds.

Judging from the size of the wing of the sting ray, they did not need their outboard motor to get back to the landing. All they had to do was to hook the sting ray on the front of their boat.

It appeared to be big enough and strong enough to pull them back to the landing. The sting ray is pictured on the bed of their pick-up truck to give a good perspective of the size of the ray.

For those fishin' buddies who like to fish close to home, y'all should be aware the white trout are all over the place in the deeper water. Reports are coming in of white trout being caught by the channel markers in Bay St. Louis around the "flowing well."

White trout are being caught right in the mouth of the Jourdan River.

White trout are being caught in front of Jubilee Casino.

Numbers of white trout are being caught by the first and second lights out in front of the mouth of Bayou Caddy.

For those fishin' buddies who want to fish by the first channel marker in front of Bayou Caddy, I need to say that there are a humongous number of tackle-eating monsters on the bottom around the first channel marker.

Fewer acres mean better rice prices

Usually when a crop is showing as much promise as this year's rice crop, prices trend lower. However, with state and national rice plantings down in 1995, growers are seeing higher prices at the market.

DeWitt Caillavet, extension economist at Mississippi State University, said in addition to fewer acres, the market is benefitting from a weaker world crop and continued strong demand. Several major rice exporting countries will be importing rice this year due to production problems resulting in lower yields.

The economist said prices have fluctuated between $8.30 and $8.70 per hundredweight in recent weeks.

"Prices have been running slightly higher than this time last year," Caillavet said.

Even though harvest time is only about a month away, prices could improve more in the coming weeks.

Mississippi planted 315,000 acres in 1994 compared to 300,000 in 1995. The U.S. rice crop dropped from 3.35 million in 1994 to almost 3.17 million this year.

Dr. Ted Miller, extension agronomy specialist in Stoneville, said the state's crop is in good condition despite some early season problems and recent water weevil maggot damage.

"Some growers had to replant because of erratic temperatures and rains early in the planting season," Miller said. "We have some fields with thin spots as a result."

Water weevil maggots, which develop on rice stems and move to the root systems for food, have been more widespread in 1995 than past years.

Tommy Baird, area agent specializing in rice in Sunflower County, said water weevil maggots were attracted to the thinner stands but were hard for growers to detect in time to prevent damage.

"Fortunately, these pests are a one generation insect, so most of their damage is done," Baird said. "Timely replanting could help the plants recuperate for decent yields."

Miller said the thinner stands and pest damage could result in a reduced yield of 13 to 30 bushels per acre in some areas.

The agronomist said growers should continue to watch for rice stink bugs and army worms as the crop starts to head in about 20 days.

Decorator Show House

The Hancock County Historical Society is sponsoring the 1995 Decorator Show House at 406 North Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis Aug. 5-26.

Hours are 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturday, and noon-3 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $5 per person or $4 per person for groups of 25 or more.

The historic residence, built in 1860 and listed in the National Register of Historic Places, sits on the bluff overlooking the Bay of St. Louis near the site of the Battle of 1814.

The residence has undergone serious renovations by the owners to restore its structural integrity. The original floor plan has undergone modest remodeling to accommodate life in the 1990's. The most significant changes were a sensitive addition of a state-of-the-art kitchen, den and real screened porch.

Designers from Bay St. Louis, New Orleans, Mobile and Ocean Springs donated their services for wall treatments and furnishings for the show-case. The home provided a palette for designers to create rooms of comfort and function, reflecting eclectic tastes of those planning to visit Le Marin.

The house has an undercut gallery on paired posts with central and secondary entrances.

Each room has been designed by a different decorator. All furnishings, art and accessories may be purchased.

Fair Representation for All

Dear Voter:

Hancock County stands before the threshold of a future that holds a vast horizon of promise and progress. To cross this threshold, the people of our county must decide if the ways of the past are suited to reap the benefits of the future. For too long representation has meant one thing for a select few and quite another for the majority. If we hold on to this system, our county will carry an unnecessary burden of injustice into a future full of promise.

The problems that we face are many but not insurmountable. Preferential treatment for a few serves only to compound those problems. I represent the only true choice for change, republican or democrat, to a system that is biased and unfair. If elected, my office will serve all my constituents to the utmost of my ability, regardless of who they know.

If we accept the promise and the challenges that the future holds, let us do so without the baggage of the past, that has stifled progress and undermined our reputation. Vote for a change, vote for fairness to all.

As school begins . . .

By Bethany Waldrop Keiper

MSU Ag Communications
The lazy summer days are quickly disappearing, leading to the beginning of another school year. For many children this is an exciting time, but for others it marks the beginning of a season of frustration.

Many students not only have to cope with pressures from their peers, but also deal with parents' pressures to succeed in academics, athletics and other leadership and extracurricular activities.

Many parents unconsciously place too much pressure on their children, said Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist at Mississippi State University.

"Both academics and activities are an important part of a child's school life, but parents shouldn't expect kids to excel in all areas," Jarratt said. "It's important to encourage youths, but the encouragement shouldn't cross the line to become pressure. It's OK to participate in activities just for fun."

Parents should be sure to praise progress as well as achievement.

Parents' pressures cause frustrations

"Youths may start feeling as though the best they can do is not good enough for their parents," Jarratt said. "This stress, combined with stress from spreading themselves too thin, can leave youths feeling out of control."

Often parents hope to live vicariously through their children, striving to make sure the children have opportunities that weren't available to them.

Jarratt warned parents to remember that each child is an individual, with different goals and interests.

"Your child's interests and abilities may be different from your own, but that doesn't lessen their importance," Jarratt said.

"Because of each child's individuality, children should never be compared with their siblings."

Both academics and extracurricular activities have their place in a child's education, Jarratt added.

Clubs, athletics and leadership roles can teach youths valuable lessons about getting involved, fitting in, meeting new people and working as part of a team.

Activities also can give youths exposure to different ideas and ways to solve problems.

Even though extracurricular activities are learning experiences, Jarratt stressed that academics should be a top priority.

"Grades are an important reflection of how much a child is learning," Jarratt said. "But remember to keep in mind children's abilities and praise them for doing their personal best."

Good two-way communication can help ensure that children realize their potential.

"Parents and children should really listen to each other and take time out to talk about concerns with school and other areas," Jarratt said. "Remember to support children's participation in activities that they currently take part in and enjoy."

Tips to improve test scores

Your youngster failed another test, and you're wondering what you can do about it? To help take the sting out of test taking, discuss these tips with your child. They come from the University of Mississippi emeritus psychology professor Roscoe Boyer, who administered tests for more than 40 years.

• Sleep and eat sensibly. Prepare for a morning test, for example, by eating a balanced dinner, getting a good night's sleep and eating a proper breakfast.

• Be prepared. Never take a test without studying and practicing first. Have on hand plenty of paper and proper pencils.

• Determine how a test will be graded. On some tests, deductions are made for wrong answers. If they're not, it's better to respond than not answer at all.

• Watch the time. Know the time allotted for the test and budget what you can spend on each question. Remember, questions usually become more difficult as the test progresses.

• Make predictions. On mathematical problems, make a prediction before formulating the answer. Check your answer with that prediction.

• Don't let unfamiliar words throw you. The meaning of unfamiliar words is sometimes revealed by sentence context, but to really improve test scores over the long run, learn Latin and Greek word stems and Anglo-Saxon prefixes and suffixes.

• Improve reading comprehension. Elaborate on what you read by answering who, what, where and why questions as you go along, or imagine what is taking place by drawing a mental picture.

• If your mind is off task, stop! Take a look at what you're doing. Ask yourself what you're trying to accomplish and try to think of new ideas or a better approach.

South Central Bell expands directory listing options

South Central Bell is expanding its popular directory listing options for residential customers. Three new options will join the original four Designer Listings introduced in the 1994-95 directories.

According to Rick Stewart, regional director for South Central Bell, "It's hard to open a White Pages directory to any page without seeing one or more Designer Listings."

Gulf Coast residents have seen how the directory enhancements can give their listings a distinguished and unique appearance and they're going to be even more pleased with the additional options."

"Designer Listings options range from $2 to $4 monthly and can be used in combinations," Stewart said. "By using distinctive type styles, ruled lines and additional informational lines, residential customers can design their own 'business cards' within the telephone directory — something that's sure to appeal to the growing work-at-home market."

Other popular uses for Designer Listings, Stewart indicated, include: statements of sports allegiance, i.e. "Philly Fanatic," lists of children's names or the names of other persons living in a household; and calling instructions, such as "No calls after 10 p.m."

The original Designer Listings options included Bold type, Bold Plus with bold type and ruled lines above and below the listing, cursive Script type, and standard type Extra Lines of information that helped identify the individual or simply allowed the person to express themselves.

New options include Script Plus with cursive type and ruled lines above and below the listing, Script Extra Line in cursive type and Bold Extra Line in bold type.

"Designer Listings enable residential customers to stand out in a crowd, making it easier for callers to identify their intended parties, no matter how many similar names may be listed. They also allow individuals to show their distinctive personalities or styles," Stewart said.

Billing for Designer Listings is delayed until after delivery of the directory in which they appear. Listings are automatically renewed each year unless South Central Bell is notified to cancel the listing.

Tips to consider when buying a camera

"A picture is worth a million words" goes the old adage, but what's the best type of camera to take that picture? Many options now crowd the market, so if you've decided to invest in photography equipment, evaluate your needs, says Robert Jordan, coordinator of media graphics and photography at the University of Mississippi. Jordan offers these guidelines if you find yourself puzzled over which equipment is best for you:

- Occasional consumer. If you're shooting just a few rolls of film a year, then you're probably better off buying a disposable camera. The all-enclosed packaging allows the user to bypass the installation and removal of film, and offers specialized formats that enable some creativity.

- Weekend shutterbugs. Don't think you have to purchase a single-lens reflex (SLR) camera to take good pictures at birthday parties, vacations, family reunions and other events.

Today's "point and shoot" camera is a perfect option for this type of photography, said the Ole Miss photographer.

The built-in flash unit and focusing components allow the shutterbug to snap a photo at a moment's notice. The drawback is the lens or flash unit cannot be changed.

However, this type of camera is still the best choice for individuals who want something easy to use, eliminating the need to learn the technical aspects.

- Photo hobbyists. Individuals interested in photography as a hobby or who have specialized applications — such as photographing athletic events or nature — should invest in a SLR. This type of camera allows the photographer to change lenses, as well as switch the camera back and forth between automatic and manual settings.

Another major advantage that the SLR user enjoys is the individual flash units can extend photo coverage out 40 to 50 feet when capturing a distant subject. Most SLRs on the market are as simple to use as "point and shoot" cameras but offer the photographer more versatility in deciding how his subject should appear.

- Instructions. Make sure

WHY VOTE REPUBLICAN?

Kay's two best reasons for caring about Hancock County's future - her grandchildren,

Devon and Regan.

To the Citizens of Hancock County,

I first came to Hancock County in 1967. I fell in love with the beauty of the area and its people. I became part of Hancock County in 1969, when we confronted Hurricane Camille. I lost almost everything I had except my husband and our two babies. Like everyone else - I started over.

I have never been a stranger to hard work. I have earned a living while attending college at night and raising two daughters alone. I've been a day laborer, a teacher, a personnel manager, an accountant, and a City Clerk. I learned the meaning of public service the old-fashioned way - through hard work.

Now, I would like to serve as your next Chancery Clerk. I need your help. Please vote for me on Tuesday, August 8, 1995.

Sincerely yours,

Kay

SSC's Fabian attends conference

Patterns and Possibilities," a national conference for Catholic high school religion teachers, department chairmen and campus ministers, was held over the weekend at the University of Dayton.

The three-day conference, June 22-25, was sponsored by the National Catholic Educational Association (NCEA) in collaboration with the university.

Michael Fabian, head of Religious Studies and assistant campus minister at St. Stanislaus, was one of more than 150 Catholic educators from 32 states who participated in the conference.

Attendees took advantage of sessions and round-table discussions on topics such as the development of spirituality in young people, teaching the scripture to students, and using the new Catechism of the Catholic Church in the classroom.

The conference was intended to enrich these educators professionally, spiritually and personally.

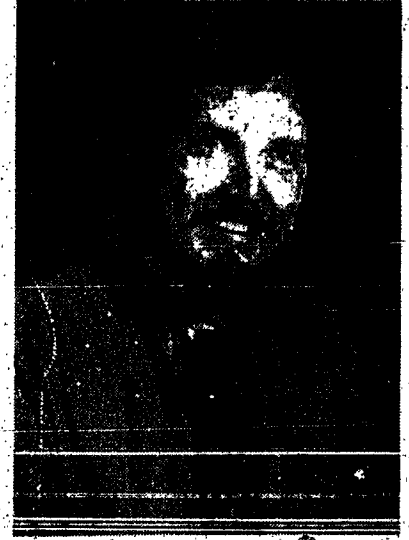

Fabian says, "The value of such a conference is that it brings us together to share our stories, our victories, our strategies. We gain new perspectives. As we move into the third millennium, our big challenge is to affirm our Catholic identity without becoming sectarian. The new Catechism will be a great help in this."

Featured speakers included Melannie Svoboda, SND; Loyola Jesuit Novitiate, Berkley, MI.; the Rev. Robert Hater, PhD, religious studies department, The University of Dayton; Eva Marie Lomas, SSS, DMin, Franciscan School of Theology, San Francisco, CA, and Thomas H. Groome, MDiv, PhD, Institute of Religious Education and Pastoral Ministry, Boston College, MA.

"This was an opportunity for our teachers and ministers to 'meet the pros' in their field and to rekindle a passion for the art and craft of their ministry," said Mary Frances Taymans, SND, assistant executive director of NCEA's Department of Secondary Schools and coordinator of the conference.

The world's largest professional association for private education, NCEA was established in 1904. The association represents some 200,000 educators serving 7.6 million students in Catholic education.

58th Annual Knost Regatta set to sail

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The 58th Annual Commodore Bernard L. Knost Ladies Championship Regatta will be sailed on August 11-13 at Pass Christian.

Success for State Games of Mississippi

The State Games of Mississippi has become a household name. People can't stop talking about the excitement of the opening ceremonies and the thrill of the athletic competitions.

The 1995 State Games was a huge success with over 3,700 amateur athletes participating in the weekend sportfest held June 23-25.

On Friday, June 23, registration took center stage at Meridian High School as competition began in baseball, basketball and softball.

At the opening ceremonies five-time Olympian Willye White thrilled more than 12,000 fans and athletes with her speech and athlete oath.

Spectators were mesmerized by the lighting of the torch and the display of fireworks. As an end to a wonderful evening, the group Beatlemania Live performed Beatles songs for the crowd.

Most of the weekend competition began on Saturday with the mountain bike race showing the largest rate of participant growth at 54 percent. Also showing growth was sailing, soccer and track and field.

The games attracted not only the young but also the young at heart. Bob Barbor, a swimmer from Meridian, was the oldest competitor at age 79. Barbor won gold medals in the 100 and 200 men's freestyle events. The youngest person to compete was Christian. The Knost Regatta, America's first all-female regatta, was started in 1938 and fifty-eight years later it is still going strong.

The regatta was started by Bernard L. Knost the year he was named commodore of the Pass Christian Yacht Club. He started the regatta because he was concerned that his mother was afraid of the water. This was typical thinking back in the days of the late 1930's when women were not pushed to sail by themselves.

The original five clubs that competed for the Bernard L. Knost Perpetual Trophy has grown to 15 clubs throughout the years. Fittingly, the Pass Christian Yacht Club has tallied the most wins with 15 while the Biloxi and Bay-Waveland Yacht Clubs have garnered 9 wins each.

Bernard Knost watched his home club, Pass Christian Yacht Club, win six times.

Today, his descendants view the race and still present the trophy at the end.

The Knost Regatta has grown into as big a race in the Gulf of Mexico as any.

The skippers for the Pass Christian Yacht Club this year are Shelly Killeen, who also happens to be the commodore of PCYC, Jennifer Peneguy, and Shirley Gooch Charbonnet. Killeen is also the first female commodore of the PCYC.

The crews for the PCYC are Lauren Bentz, Lynn Dubisson, Sally Dane, Amelia Taylor, and Megan Padack.

The first race starts at 1pm on August 12 and there will be two races. The Regatta will conclude on August 13.

For more information please call the Pass Christian Yacht Club.

Pro rodeo in town next weekend

More than 270 rodeo athletes will be in Biloxi next weekend competing for championship titles and prize money as the 9th annual Mississippi Coast Championship Pro Rodeo kicks off at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 4 and continues through Sunday.

This year, the rodeo will feature the best in family entertainment as top professional competitors from across the U.S., Canada and the local area compete against the clock and award-winning livestock.

The rodeo will showcase the best in saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, bull riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, team roping and barrel racing.

Some of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) contestants competing next weekend are 1994 World Champion Calf Roper Herbert Theriot of Poplarville, and the 1994 Southeastern Circuit Team Roping champions Speedy Williams of Jacksonville, Fla., and Brad Culpepper of Poulan, Ga.

Other champion title holders include 1993 Bareback Champion Lane Crump of Cooper, Texas, who is currently in 10th place in the world of bareback riding.

Hot on Crump's heels for the bareback championship is the 1992-94 Southeastern Circuit

Bareback Champion title holder Kirk Richard of Sulphur, La., currently in 12th place.

Other top competitors are barrel racer Lindsey Hayes of Opelika, Ala., in third place for the 1995 world title, and Chris Littlejohn of Tulsa, Okla., who won 14th in the world for bull-riding this last December in the National Finals in Las Vegas.

These are just a few of the talented rodeo professionals who will be appearing at the Coliseum with many others who compete more on a local or regional level. There are many contestants who do not compete full-time and since many have to stay near home for work and family, the PRCA designed the Circuit System.

This system allows competitors to stay close to home while still being able to earn points and money. The U.S. is divided into 12 regional circuits and the top 15 cowboys in each event are invited to compete in their region's circuit finals.

After the event champions are determined for each circuit, these competitors go to one of PRCA's most prestigious events — the Dodge National Circuit Finals Rodeo.

With more than $300,000 at stake, this rodeo puts part-time circuit cowboys in head-to-head competition with world champions to compete for the National Circuit titles.

Mississippi, along with Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee are the southeastern circuit.

The event is sponsored by Budweiser, Boomtown Casino, Bryan Foods, Winn-Dixie, Bay-side Dodge, Domino's Pizza, Checkers, Primestar Satellite, Bargain Annex, Gulf Coast Medical Center, Gulf Oaks Hospital, Michael's Country Club, Heilig-Meyers and Holiday Inn Coliseum.

For more information on the rodeo, call the Mississippi Coast Coliseum at (601) 388-8010.

Wildlife Extravaganza offers something for everyone

The ninth annual Mississippi Wildlife Extravaganza is coming to the Trade Mart in Jackson Aug. 4-6.

For three solid days sportsmen and outdoor enthusiasts can browse among the latest in outdoor gear and buy whatever they need for their favorite outdoor activity.

The Extravaganza, sponsored by the Mississippi Wildlife Federation, is the largest wildlife consumer show in the state.

Over 25,000 people attend each year to discover not only hundreds of retail exhibitors, but also a variety of competitions, lots of activities for kids, and a packed seminar schedule with something for every interest.

Our seminars and demonstrations are really the best buy in the show. When people come to the show, they find more than exhibits. You can hear seminars from experts, learn about conservation, try your skills out in competitions, and even pick up a new hunting license. It's a real bargain," said Mike Goff, MWF president and chair of the 1995 Extravaganza Committee.

Seminars offer variety

Goff added that this year's seminar lineup is the best ever in terms of variety and sheer numbers. A featured speaker new to Mississippi is Gary Seton, world champion deer and turkey caller.

Seton will host two different seminars several times during the weekend on using slate and glass friction calls, and on the do's and don'ts of calling white-tails.

Mississippi's own Preston Pittman will return to demonstrate his unique and humorous turkey calling methods. Charlie White, world class bowhunter, will offer a new seminar on Alaskan Bowhunting.

Wildlife consultant Bill Tomlinson, President of the Wildlife Technical Services will appear for the first time at the show for a seminar on wildlife management.

And Larry Castle, Mississippi Department of Wildlife Fisheries and Parks, will host an informative session on Sunday about the new deer bag limits.

Two Mississippi wildlife photographers, Steve Kirkpatrick and Paul Brown, will offer new seminars. Kirkpatrick has just released a new full-color book on loons and Canadian wildlife and has developed a new multi-media program based on the book.

He'll show his new program on Sunday, and will be available during show hours to autograph first edition copies of "In Wilderness song."

Brown has also developed a new program entitled "Wild Babies" — a pictorial on the wildlife's young which he'll present on Friday evening.

Clinton herpetologist Terry Vandeventer will speak on snakes and reptiles of Mississippi. He'll also have a few live specimens on hand to demonstrate and show.

Demonstrations

The Larwen Hawg Trough will return for another encore performance. The Hawg Trough is a fish tank the size of a semi, and will be the stage for trick and bait casting performances all weekend.

Fish for the tank are natives from the aquaria of the Mississippi Natural Science Museum.

The Magnolia Retrievers and the Mississippi Falconers will also offer demonstrations all weekend. L. J. Smith, safety officer for Brell Mar, will even climb a tree stand on-stage while discussing safety and technique.

Competitions

Bowhunters can try their skills at the new video archery range sponsored by Hunter's Hollow of Oxford and Starkville. The range is a Visions Archery System and will be used for a weekend long open archery competition. Divisions are men's, women's and youth, and competitors may use field tips.

MWF will again sponsor the state's largest Big Buck contest at the show. Entrants may bring mounts from deer taken in the 1994-95 season to the Trade Mart Friday or Saturday (until noon), to be entered and scored by MDWFP biologist.

Ducks Unlimited will also host its Hunter, State and Regional Calling Competition in the Seminar Room on Saturday. American Blowguns will host their blowgun competition all weekend, too.

All competitions are open to the public.

Things to do for the family

Kids can also try their hand at the Daisy BB Range sponsored by the Hunter Safety Division at MDWFP. The Natural Science Museum will have a 700-gallon swamp tank as part of their new exhibit filled with creatures from Mississippi's swamps. The Wildlife Federation will also have several exhibits and a short nature trail with an endangered species of Mississippi exhibit, stream critters, and a backyard wildlife display.

The cast and some crew of Mississippi Outdoors television program on ETV will make special appearances during the weekend. Woody the Owl and Smokey the Bear will be honored guests at the show as well.

Katfish 95 radio station will also release a five-pound catfish into the reservoir at the end of the show to kick off their fishing tournament. The lucky angler who lands the tagged Katfish 95 fish will win $10,000. (The $10,000 fish will be on display at the show).

On Sunday afternoon MWF will give away a River Hawk boat and will give away an Amacker tree stand every hour of the show. Mississippi Sportsmen Against Hunger will also collect deer meat for the Mississippi Food Network as part of their annual "Clean Out Your Freezer" Food Drive.

And, last but certainly not least, there will be hundreds of exhibitors.

Show hours on Friday are 3-9 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m.-7 p.m. and Sunday 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Social clubs not key for college success

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development
Cooperative Extension Service

"I know I should be enjoying my summer, but I'm worried about what it's going to be like in college. I'm scared. I'm not going to fit in."

"A lot of my friends are obsessed with the idea of sororities. Even if I thought it was a great idea, I wouldn't be able to go out for rush because I can't afford it. I don't have the money, the clothes or the car to keep up with that group. But my friends tell me I'll regret it if I don't try for a sorority."

"Are fraternities and sororities really so important that you can't enjoy the college without joining one?"

Greek organizations are NOT what college is all about. They have a place along with other extracurricular activities. They are important to some people but unimportant to others. They provide some positive experiences to some and negative experiences to others.

You definitely can make friends in college without being in a sorority. You can participate in a wide range of extracurricular activities without being in a sorority. You can use your leadership skills without being in a sorority.

Your success and happiness in college is going to be determined by your attitude and your choices — not by what organizations you join.

If you get involved in activities that interest you and spend the time you should studying, you won't have the time or the need to worry about what you're not a part of. Friends can be found in many places. There are no joining fees for friendship.

"I think I've lost a friend because of something I said. I said something about my friend to someone who assured me he would never breathe a word of it to anyone. The next time I saw my friend, it was like an icy breeze was blowing over me."

"The person I talked to must have gone straight to my friend with what I said. I'm really sorry for what I did and would like to make it right with my friend, but I don't think she'll give me the time of day. What can I do?" Learn a lesson from what happened. Some people either cannot or will not keep a confidence. Never tell them anything you wouldn't want announced to the world. Somehow, whether innocently or maliciously, they will spread the word.

Another thing to consider is that it's best not to say something negative about someone unless there is a strong probability that the person you're telling can and will be a part of a positive solution.

Wait a little while for your friend's hurt feelings to ease. Then go to her and tell her that you've been concerned about the coldness between you. Ask her to talk with you about what's going on. Be honest in your apology and assure her that you've learned your lesson.

Hopefully with time and honest communication the two of you can become friends again.

If you have any questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Photography contest

Second graders at Waveland Elementary School, Pearl River County, won a photography contest sponsored by Kmart and Kodak. The project called "It's a Snap! Using Cameras in the Curriculum" is designed to teach children about photography and the environment in a fun and creative way. Using this theme, the program encouraged children to take pictures illustrating what is beautiful and what needs to be improved in their environment. Winners are, front row from left, Sarah Powell, second place — needs improvement; Brittany Sams, first place — needs improvement; Stephen Fuslier, grand prize — beautiful; Ashley Ladner, second place — needs improvement; back row, Mary Anne Wilkerson, Kmart representative; Whitney Thomas, third place — beautiful; Thomas Smith, third place — needs improvement; and Tony Marino, second place — beautiful. Not pictured are Lacy Bigham, grand prize — needs improvement, and first place — beautiful; and Cherie Richardson, second place — needs improvement.

Summer enrollment up at Carey College

Final 1995 summer enrollment figures show an increase of 7 percent as compared to 1994 enrollment. A total of 1,514 students are currently registered, an increase of approximately 100 students over 1994 results.

According to Tom Scarbrough, vice president of Student Services, graduate enrollment is up significantly for the 1995 summer session.

"Both our MEd and MBA programs are continuing to grow. The support from the State of Mississippi for elementary and secondary school teachers has really helped people who want to improve their instructional skills and complete a graduate degree."

"Additionally, the business community support for managers and young executives in the Hattiesburg/Laurel and Gulf Coast areas has definitely encouraged growth in our MBA program."

"Both of the school deans in these areas — Dr. Bill Hetrick in education and Dr. Ben Hawkins in business — have worked hard to recruit new graduate students, and the results are showing."

The undergraduate enrollment total of 800 students for Carey's two Mississippi campuses — Hattiesburg and the Gulf Coast — was approximately the same for the 1995 summer session when compared to 1994. The summer enrollment in nursing and pre-nursing in New Orleans of 275 students is down from 315 in 1994.

"We are continuing to be very market-oriented in our enrollment strategies," Scarbrough said.

"Our latest Hattiesburg endeavor of opening the Cloverleaf Mall Center for our Adult Learning Program for students who are 25 years of age or older is another way that William Carey College is addressing the educational and economic needs of the mid-South region."

PRCC sets fall registration

Pearl River Community College will hold regular registration/orientation for fall classes Aug. 16-18 on the campus in Poplarville.

This registration is open to both new and former PRCC students.

Students will register according to the first letter of their last name. Individuals who have never attended PRCC must attend an orientation session on the day they register.

The registration schedule is: Wednesday, Aug. 16: A - 8:30 a.m.; B - 9 a.m.; C - 9:30 a.m.; D - 10 a.m.; E - 10:30 a.m.; F - 1 p.m.; G - 1:30 p.m.; H - 2 p.m.

Thursday, Aug. 17: I - 8:30 a.m.; J - 9 a.m.; K - 9:30 a.m.; L - 10 a.m.; M - 10:30 a.m.; N - 1 p.m.; O - 1:30 p.m.; P - 2 p.m.

Friday, Aug. 18: Q - 8:30 a.m.; R - 9 a.m.; S - 9:30 a.m.; T - 10 a.m.; U - 10:30 a.m.; V - 1 p.m.; W - 1:30 p.m.; X, Y, Z - 2 p.m.

Academic and technical students must provide an official high school transcript showing date of graduation (or official GED scores), official transcripts of all other colleges attended, and official ACT scores.

The transcripts and ACT scores must be sent directly to PRCC by the high schools, other colleges, or the ACT Corporation. Students should bring their own copies of these documents to graduation to be used by advisors.

No students will be allowed to register without transcripts or ACT results.

Vocational students must furnish high school and other college transcripts. Vocational students over age 18 may be admitted without a high school diploma by waiver of the Admissions Committee.

Vocational students must take the Test of Adult Basic Education (TABE) during registration.

For more information on fall registration, call PRCC at (601) 795-6801.
